SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1881.

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, the discussion on the Murrumbidgee award was continued after we went to press.

Mr. KING defended his colleague (Mr. Garrett) from the charges made against him, and held that no one had been established against the hon. gentleman.

Mr. McLEOD felt that he was a juryman trying Mr. Garrett, and that he must be guided by the evi-unity of the press, the liberty of the press, and witness to protect it, and of his speech which he uttered outside the walls of Parliament. The rights of the press, however, are simply the rights of free citizens, nothing more and nothing less. Every citizen is not only at perfect liberty to discuss Mr. SALOMON'S report, but we may go further, and say that there would have been a lamentable want of public feeling exhibited if there had not been an intense interest shown with regard to it. The press was not only entitled to discuss Mr. SALOMON'S report, but was bound to do it. It was equally bound to discuss Mr. BAKER'S vindication and Mr. GIBBERT'S, and such a discussion naturally involves giving an opinion, and the Times for it. Mr. BAKER himself wrote to the press giving his version, and Mr. GARDNER took the earliest opportunity in Parliament of also putting his case before the country. Both men in this way submitted themselves to the adjudication of public opinion. But whether they had done so or not, the question was ripe for public discussion on the basis of the report. All subjects which it is proper for Parliament to discuss it is proper for the people to discuss; and if Parliament by its own action raises the question as to whether any member has been guilty of improper conduct, and publishes a body of evidence on the question, the press and the public are entitled to go into that investigation as thoroughly as Parliament itself—to form an opinion and to express it. To limit the rights of the press in this respect would be to make it practically useless for public purposes.

The reference to the BRADLAUGH case in one of the TREKLER's speeches on Tuesday was not happy, nor were the remarks made in strict accordance with the facts. Sir HERBY BRADLAUGH's argument was to the effect that Mr. TREKLER had been expelled by the House of Commons, that the expulsion was a new thing, and that it was in no way covered by the associative privileges of Parli-ment. In the House of Commons he had expelled the member for Northampton; it could hardly have been said that it was going beyond its privileges. But in reality Mr. BRASLAUGH was not expelled at all, and the action that has been taken in his case has not been by virtue of the prescriptive privileges of the House, but under the provisions of an Act. The truth is, that Mr. BRASLAUGH has not been sitting because the Courts have declared him indigible to sit. His anomalous position has, during the greater part of the present year at least, been owing to the decision of the Court. He did not take his seat when elected for Northampton as the Premier told us, as his taking his seat did not occur until some time after his election. As the matter is a typical one, and may be quoted again, it may be as well to ascertain exactly what the House really did with Mr. BRADLAUGH. When this gentleman presented himself as one of the members for Northampton, he claimed to be allowed to make an affirmation instead of an oath. By the English Evidence Amendment Acts, atheists and others are relieved of the obligation of taking an oath in a court of justice, and Mr. BRADLAUGH wanted to do in the House what he had been in the habit of doing in the Courts. If he had been allowed to do this, the BRADLAUGH difficulty would probably not have arisen. Mr. GLYNSHORE—and in this he was supported by the Times. He held that a duly elected member should be permitted to take his seat subject to any liability created by statute. The interpretation of the law, he contends, is the business of the courts. Unfortunately, however, the SPEAKER of the House of Commons did not take this view, and Mr. BURNHAM was not allowed to affirm, and consequently did not take his seat. The matter was then referred to a committee, the question which the committee had to decide being whether the member for Northampton should be allowed to affirm or not. The committee decided that he ought not to be allowed. There is a statute permitting Members to affirm, but the opinion

The first Jews like those of Mr. Bradlaugh were not contemplated when that statute was framed. Seeing that he could not affirm, Mr. Bradlaugh claimed to be allowed to take the oath, stating that while the religious part of the oath had no meaning to him, the form of words would be binding. The SPEAKER again declined to take the responsibility of admitting Mr. Bradlaugh, and a second committee was appointed, the question to be decided being, whether a member who declares that the religious part of the oath is now binding on him fulfils his statutory obligation when he takes the oath. The committee decided that he does not, and therefore recommended that

Mr. BRADLAUGH should not be allowed to swear. The first committee decided that he should not affirm, the second were of opinion that he should be allowed to affirm, but should not be permitted to swear. The proposal of the second committee, to the effect that the decision of the first should be revised, was not accepted, and thus the unhappy member was still left out in the cold. The matter was then taken up by the other member for Northampton, but without success. Subsequently Mr. GLADSTONE proposed that Mr. BRADLAUGH should be allowed to affirm, and the House, notwithstanding its previous decision, accepted Mr. GLADSTONE'S motion by a large majority. At this stage Mr. BRAD-

LAUGH made the necessary affirmation, and took his seat. On leaving the House, however, he was, at the instance of a Tory, served with a writ claiming to recover the penalty of £500, imposed on members who unlawfully take part in the proceedings of the House. The question which the Court was asked to decide was, whether the statute allowing affirmation covered a case like Mr. BRADLAUGH's, and whether the religious element in the oath is essential to it. On both of these points the Court decided against the member for Northampton, the consequence being that the seat for that borough was declared vacant. At the election which followed Mr. BRADLAUGH again offered himself to the constituency, and having been re-elected, appeared at the House of Commons demanding to be allowed to take the customary oath. On the motion of Sir NORTHGOTE this demand was again refused. BRADLAUGH, insisting on his right, was placed in custody. Since that period he has attempted to claim the privileges of a member, but has been resisted by the officers of the House. Mr. BRADLAUGH is not expelled, he is still member for Northampton, but is not allowed to sit, the Court have declared him ineligible. What is necessary to meet his case is a bill empowering persons of advanced religious opinions to make affirmation. The Government have promised such a bill, but NAPLES, Italy, Jan. 11.—Russia had been brought to an end. The alliance between Russia and Austria was broken. In 1870, Russia was in close alliance with Prussia. She might have saved the dismemberment of France, but Prussia had humiliated Austria and must be rewarded. Now Austria and Germany are allies, and Russia is disturbed. The embraces and tears of even great potentates do not go for much in the diplomacy of nations.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

IN our second edition yesterday we published the result of the division on the motion that was moved on Thursday night, in the Legislative Assembly, by Mr. Henry Francis Johnson, in relation to the proposed amendment to the constitution, which was declared, in effect, that the conduct of Mr. Garrett in regard to the Milburn Creek award was unworthy of a member of the Assembly.

ly. The discussion was continued until 1:30 a.m. yesterday. A division was taken, and the motion negatived by 40 votes to 38. The report of the proceedings that took place in the House after we went to press yesterday morning, will be found in the columns of the Standard. After the division on the motion of Mr. Henry Parker in reference to the resignation of Sir John Robertson and himself, in reference to the former's resignation of the seat as a member of the Cabinet.

There were plenty of rumours flying about town yesterday evening in reference to the political situation. It was stated that Mr. Daxley had been invited to take the position of Minister for Public Instruction, vacant by the resignation of Sir John Robertson, and that the hon. gentleman would very likely accept the position. Another statement current among politicians is that Mr. Luskay has followed the lead of his old chief, Sir John Robertson, and resigned.

The Russian Government has, in a formal manner, declared its intention to oppose any settlement between the Turkish Government and the British and other bondholders, which may be arrived at by the Commission now sitting at Constantinople, unless the war indemnity is satisfactorily settled. It is well known that to induce a settlement of the Turkish debt, which had been so much hoped for by the bondholders, especially as the Porte has rejected Russia's claim. The motion of censure against the French Government, brought forward on account of the treaty recently concluded with the Bey of Tunis, has been rejected, and in its stead a resolution has been adopted, on the motion of M. Gambetta to have the attack on the French Government, made by each treaty, Mr. Ferré's Government has, however, since assigned, and M. Gambetta has been entrusted with the formation of a new Ministry. One of our messages of this morning states that the British Government contemplates calling a convention of the Powers interested in the South Sea, to consider the desiderata of some united action for the protection of the white population against the abuses of the various islands. In furtherance of this purpose, there have been again victorious, and many insurgents are submitting.

We are requested to state that Lady Angustus Loftus will hold a reception at Government House on Wednesday, the 10th instant, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Yesterday afternoon, in the Town Hall, the prizes won at the recent Fire Brigades Demonstration were presented to the winners by Sir Henry Parkes. A large number of firemen were present, and the proceedings passed off very agreeably.

Is the Banco Court, yesterday, the plaintiff in

Mr Mahon v. Andrew and another, without calling further evidence took a nonsuit, and his Honor Sir W. Manning directed the plaintiff to be re-imposed. In the Jury Court, Mr Gilmore v. Matthews was tried on a verdict for the plaintiff with damages for the full amount claimed.

A special meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held in the Town Hall yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of considering the report from the Finance sub-committee on the maintenance of streets through which tramways pass. The Mayor occupied the chair, and there was a fair attendance of aldermen. The report, which was published in this journal a few days ago, was read. It stated that the corporation would be sufficient to the Government to contribute annually a sufficient sum of money to enable the Council to make and maintain the streets in question, or that the Government should make the whole width of them permanently with wooden blocks at their own cost, leaving the future maintenance of the portions out-side the rails to the corporation. Alderman J. Young moved that the report be adopted. Alderman J. C. McCord seconded the motion, and it was carried without discussion. Alderman Fowler presented a petition for kerbing, gutting, and drains to be formed in Crow-road, Pymont. The following is a statement of the financial position of the Council for the week ending 10th November:—(City Fund, £d. 211,151 17s. 9d.; Water Fund, £d. 247,162 8s. 8d.; Sewerage Fund, £d. 211,506 9s. 6d.; Sydney Companies Fund, £d. 272,271 7s.; Tate's Saltpetre, £d. 416,211 3s. 6d.; Sinking Fund, £d. 1,000,000 0s. 0d.; Bank balance, £d. 29,888 4s. 9d.; £d. 237,211 1s. 11d. Government guarantee Sewerage Fund, £d. 275,000, less amount retired by Government and due to City Fund—£137,500. Sinking Fund, city, £d.

A MEETING of the undergraduates of the Sydney University was held in one of the lecture rooms on Thursday, May 14th. Forster occupied the chair. After a short business discussion the following resolutions were agreed to, to be presented to the senate:— "Considering that many candidates are at present prevented from acquiring distinction in some special branch by the demand made upon them for other subjects, and that of ordinary students and ordinary candidates many of find it better to know one subject well than to have a scanty knowledge of more than one, and that the character of the examinations of the University of Cambridge, the undergraduates respectfully ask that bylaw 68 may be altered so as to read thus:— 'To obtain the degree of B.A. a candidate shall either (1) pass satisfactory examinations in two

(2) If he shall have passed satisfactorily the first yearly examination) obtain such a class as shall be determined by the senate in one only of the unmentioned schools—classical, mathematical, or natural sciences.

The official report of the Board of Health in regard to smallpox is as follows:—"The following patients have been visited by the Government Medical Staff on the 10th instant, and reported as progressing favourably: Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Denford and her two sons, Mrs. George, Miss O'Neil, and Mr. and Mrs. McFarland and the two children, at Pryor; Mr. Atkins, Burwood; Mr. Ward, Globe; Henry, Alsea, and Arthur Hancock, 29, Hunt street; and Mrs. Mary Ann Hancock, 20, Market street. The house of Mr. Amos Stephenson was visited from quarantine on the 10th instant. The inclemency of the weather has prevented the removal of any of the members of the Jenford or Burke families. The house in which those two families reside is only divided from that of Mr. Smith's by a paling fence; and the drainage of both houses and yards, like that of a large proportion of our premises generally affected with small-pox, is of the worst possible character."

A RATHER remarkable discovery was made in Georgetown yesterday. Some workmen were cutting excavations for drains opposite the business premises of Alderman Chapman, near the markets, when they came upon a well. It was situated only about 3 feet beneath the surface of the ground, and found to extend across a large part of the street, and to contain a quantity of tolerably pure water. Ironbark slabs had been used to cover it, and although they had probably been buried in the earth for half a century, they showed no signs of decay. A gentleman who has resided for nearly 50 years in the vicinity, and is acquainted with its history, says he has no remembrance of the well being sunk, or in fact any knowledge of its all but recent discovery.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1881.

MINISTER W. WINCHESTER, in a speech before the House that the opinion of the Commissioner, as to the relative value to be attached to the evidence of the conflicting witnesses, was a sound one.

There is one point in connection with the debate, on which we feel bound to make a remark, and that is as to the aspersions cast on the press for discussing this question. There are some members who rarely lose an opportunity upon a well. It was situated only about 3 feet beneath the surface of the ground, and found to extend across a third of the street, and to contain a depth of 80 feet of tolerably pure water. Ironbark slabs had been used to cover it, and although they had probably been buried in the earth for half a century, they showed no signs of decay. A gentleman who has resided for nearly 50 years in the vicinity, and is acquainted with its history, says he has no remembrance of the well being sunk, or in fact any knowledge of it at all, but he would be glad to meetings closed.

In the matter of James Lamrock Ltd.
son's proof was admitted for £1371 3s.

Witnesses also were examined, but all the material evidence is stated above. For the defense, Mr. Currell (who had cross-examined the witnesses for the prosecution) called a witness to give evidence of the good character of the defendant, and to throw a shadow upon the boy's father. The witness, Wardship consulted for a short time, when Mr. Nims said that by a majority the defendant was adjudged to be guilty of misconduct in his office of police constable, and sentenced him to pay a penalty of 20s., with 12s. for costs, and to be imprisoned to purge a prohibition. Court gave notice of his intention to proceed for a prohibition.

The money was taken by Deane Moore from the bank, but the check for the amount of his bill was not cashed. Wilson's bill was for £1,000. Deane Moore was committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions, and Bail was granted—the accused in his own bond of £200, and two sureties in the form of £100 each.

Joseph Seymour proceeded against a number of peddlers for intrusion of the city by horns. For peddling horns on foot, he was fined 10c, each, and costs. For driving over the intersections of various streets at a pace faster than a walk, six persons were fined 10c, each, and costs. Thomas Bamber pleaded guilty to allowing his filth to remain on his premises in Kent-street, and was fined 25c, as well as ordered to remove the same. James O'Brien was fined 10c, and costs, for allowing filth to remain on his premises, in Kent-street, and was fined 5c and 5c, costs. Two shopkeepers were fined 10c, each, and costs, for allowing their horse-drawn carriages to stand in front of their business premises. It was shown that boys were employed by the defendants to throw their filth into the streets, and that the boys were carrying distasteful handbills in their hands, and that the boys were throwing the distasteful handbills three or four on the foot-paths, and that in cases where passers-by refused to take a bill, the boy also threw it down; and that the paper on which the handbills were printed was of a filthy and offensive color, and became a nuisance. In each case a fine of 5c and 5c, costs, was imposed. Edward Shaker, for suffering filth to remain on his premises, in Kent-street, was fined 10c, and costs.

NEW ZEALAND.

altar and whose tomb will always be an altar sacred to Italiana; of him who pronounced the words "ci siamo e ci resteremo," and I conclude with the words the heroes who fell here in 1870 shouted when dying, "Viva il Re." The effect upon his anti-clerical colleagues could scarcely have been greater had he wound up by shouting "Long live the Pope King." Their faces were as bright as the sun, and their hearts as glad as the angels. Metti Garibaldi, Mostardi (the reporter of the Capitale), and other Republicans censured him with a degree of violence thought would have led to blows. "The outlines of his discourse had been laid down for him," they said, "and he had no right to depart from them."

"With all this agitation, however, there is not the slightest probability of the law of the Papal States being ever abolished or of the Pope ever again being brought before Parliament. Should such a thing as even a modification of that law be made, it may be taken as certain that the Pope will leave Rome at once; and that Leo XIII. has had the advisability of taking that step, to which individually he is strongly inclined, seriously under consideration, is a fact about which no secret is made either in the Vatican or among the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See."

But while all this active antagonism, unforseen three months ago, has sprung up in Italy against the Pope, the old enemy of the Vatican, Prince Bismarck, has astonished everybody by coming forward with the olive branch. He has sent Dr. Von Schloesser, the German Ambassador at Washington, who was in Europe on an official mission, to the Vatican to deliver to Cardinal Jansini, the Papal Secretary of State, the re-establishment of the Prussian Legation to the Vatican, suppressed, if I am not in error, in 1872. That offer has been cordially accepted; and the negotiator, Dr. Von Schloesser, will, it is understood, be replaced at Washington and appointed the new Prussian Minister to the Vatican.

On the other hand, however, there is grief at the Vatican. The lost sheep, and more especially so inasmuch as the defection has taken place from among the Canons of the Patriarcal Basilica of St. Peter. On the evening of the 14th instant the Canon Enrico Campello, of the family of the counts of that name, publicly abjured the Roman Catholic faith, and declared that he had embraced Protestantism in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the West Hill, near London, in the Strand. In taking that step he renounced an income of nearly £5000 per annum, but while mentioning that fact, impartiality requires that I should state that unimpassioned opinion is much divided regarding the disinterestedness of that act. That he has renounced £5000 a year there can be no doubt. Whether the statements made with regard to the amply compensation he expects to receive are true or not, I cannot say. I can only say that he is the facts what they may in that respect, the Methodist body, it is only right to say, have nothing to do with them.

Enrico Campello has been spoken of as a monsignore, but he had not attained that rank in the Roman Catholic Church.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read Dr Taylor's and Mr Kyngdon's letters; and I am glad to hear of the English sparrow as observed very closely for seven years in my own garden and about our parks and roadways, would lead me fully to the conclusion that it is a native bird, and is not depending himself on an insect diet, either larval or winged. Often I have patiently watched them for an hour or two, and would have felt glad to be able to give a full and accurate description of their habits, but I score my but black marks. Grain, seeds, the buds of trees, and occasionally ripe fruit are evidently their chief sustenance. One among them completely stripped a plum tree of its fruit, and another was seen to devour the buds of a flowering plum tree. I have seen them devour the flowers that blossom on the scurvy grass, and the sunflowers that sprang so luxuriantly that it is almost impossible to ripen these seeds now at Burwood. Sprouting the earliest of the winter wheat, and the first of the broad weed crops, are a favourite feeding ground, as they tear up the entire plant to feast on the newly germinated grain; and I can quite understand that the birds are not only the cause of the destruction and multiplication of these unmitigated despolers of their crops.

Five years ago I indicated in your columns the danger likely to arise from the importation of these birds, and many of my neighbours would now be glad if the warning had received more heed. They might easily have been exterminated then, but now they are plentiful and in the colonies of the London district, where they were allowed to breed unmolested, the upper rooms of which were quite untenable in the summer of last year, and the lower rooms were so infested with them that the colony was routed out, and the roof thoroughly cleaned. In some of the churches the twittering of the young birds effectually drowned the minister's voice, and their nests in the rafters and beams not only pollute the interior, but often stop its flow to the tanks.

Worse than all, perhaps, is their antagonism to other birds, and especially to the native songsters, and to their old haunts. They are full-bellied bullies and relentless persecutors of weaker feathered cousins.

Our native birds near Sydney are nearly all insectivorous, or honey-suckers, and some of the most beautiful, the silver-eave, are all farmers' friends. Even the silver-eave, if it does peck holes in grapes, apricots, and other luscious fruits, has some redeeming intails of character, and is not so much of a pest as the English sparrow. Sparrows were really silver-eaves. I have often seen these latter birds busily clearing rose bushes and other plants of the aphid beetle, and there is a vast amount of good work done in the same way. These birds often come in considerable numbers, and, being somewhat like the sparrow hawk in their habits, they are not so much of a pest as what appears to me as a wrong conclusion.

I am, Sir, very truly,
Yours, &c.,
BURWOOD, NOVEMBER 5. EDW. PALMER.

THE CHINESE IN HONOLULU.—The Vice-consul of the United States at Honolulu, in a late despatch (received here) to the Department of the Interior, gives expression to the opinion that, from the present aspect of things, only a few years will elapse before the Chinese population of Honolulu will be a majority. He writes, "A large portion of immigrants arriving here yearly are Chinese." Further on he adds: "The census of 1878 showed the Chinese population of the country to be 11,265, and there are at the least calculation 3000 more on the way here. Unless restrictive measures are taken by this Government, in a few years they will outnumber the natives, and will be a majority of the population, and virtually a Chinese colony. The mode of advance of these people in the islands is quite different from that pursued by the natives. They are not nomadic, but they are at the bottom, and by gradually gaining knowledge in household industry, the mechanic arts, and laterly in commerce, being lightly equipped and without families, at least here, they are able to advance more rapidly than the natives. But it is easier work for them in the Sandwich Islands. The Vice Consul writes:—"There is hardly a department of business or an agricultural industry in these islands in which the Chinese are not represented." He mentions the possession of Government and private lands by long leases and by purchase; they assimilate and intermarry with the natives, and are not represented in the legislature. They enrich their patches and rice fields. Judging from the rapid manner in which the native population of these islands is dying out, it is not improbable that many hundreds of thousands of Chinese will be in the islands of Honolulu may witness the last scene in the Hawaiian drama.

EXTRAORDINARY MINING FRAUDS.—At the London Central Criminal Court recently Lord Rollin Reynolds was sentenced by the Recorder to two years imprisonment for fraud and forgery in connection with the Silver Valley Mining Company by fraud and false pretences. The facts of this remarkable case are these: Mr. Ludru Rollin first invested millions, next he found out that the Silver Valley was a fraud, and he sold them. He gave, observes a writer in a contemporary, to their airy willingness a local inhibition on the subject of the Silver Valley, and he then proceeded to set up various elaborate fictions about them. First of all they must be sold by one person to somebody else; and this was readily effected through the agency of two or three persons, and the price was fixed at £100,000 to £300,000—not half its value.—Mr. Henry consented, compelled to do so by circumstances over which he had no control, to sell the Silver Valley Mines to Mr. Harrison, who, forthwith, sold them to the Silver Valley Silver Valley Mines Company. A prospectus was drawn up and issued, and the purchase of shares invited. The £1 shares were bought up with gratifying rapidity, and the £1 shares were bought up for £100,000. The money for the time obtained to his own banking account. For a time all went well with the ingenious financier. But on the 21st of January, 1881, he was informed by Mr. Henry, alias Mr. Harrison, was so remarkably apparent in this document that the public were completely taken in. Those who have followed the details of the Native question given in my previous letters will have realized the position as it stood at the date of my last writing. A few days after that events moved forward. Mr. Rolleston, the Native Minister, returned from the West Coast to Wellington, and was accompanied by his predecessor and former colleague, Mr. Bryce. It will be remembered that not very long after Sir Arthur Gordon's arrival in New Zealand, Mr. Rolleston returned from the Ministry. To him came the news that he had retired from office. He was naturally surprised, as he did not comprehend the latter it is necessary to recapitulate the former. One of Sir Arthur Gordon's first acts was to send him A.D.C. to Parikahi with an autograph letter to Te Whiti, asking for a meeting. It was somewhat ostentatiously declared at the time that this step was taken with the full concurrence of the Ministry. Sir Arthur Gordon, however, was not so candid. Mr. Bryce, the Native and Defence Minister, was absent from Wellington, and that his name was not attached to any of the official records connected with the letter. Te Whiti replied to the letter was the enigmatical sentence, "The potato is cooked." Very soon after the A.D.C. returned Mr. Bryce announced that he had resigned his seat in the Ministry. The official reason assigned was a difference of opinion with his colleagues as to the steps necessary to be taken in regard to settlement of the West Coast difficulty. It was intimated that Mr. Bryce had insisted on going to Parikahi with the full force of his command, and that the Government would not do so. The march leader of McLean, a native named Hiniki, who was well known to be harboured by Te Whiti at Parikahi, was arrested. This, Mr. Bryce insisted, was the only way of destroying Te Whiti's power; and he held out the prospect that counsel might be obtained against such difficulties without any danger of causing bloodshed. That Te Whiti was not at all prepared for resistance. One or two of his colleagues are understood to have supported Mr. Bryce's views, but the majority were not prepared to accept the responsibility of the steps he advised, and he therefore felt it his duty to retire from the Ministry. His resignation took place during the sitting of the House, and throughout last session gave his former colleagues a firm and loyal support. Since the session he has been pursuing his ordinary avocation as a settler in the Wanganui district. About a fortnight ago, as I have said, he returned here in company with Mr. Rolleston, and, with the exception of Mr. Whitaker, all the members of the Executive Council assembled here.

Mr. Bryce was waiting almost continuously, and that Mr. Bryce was in close consultation with Ministers. Late on the evening of Wednesday, 19th October, a special meeting of the Executive was held, and Mr. Bryce was again sworn in as a member of the Executive with his former Native and Defence portfolio. In thus returning to office he did so as a private citizen, and not as a Minister. He spoke individually and collectively; and it is understood with pledges that he should be allowed full power to settle matters in his own way. It is a remarkable fact that at the very Executive meeting at which he was sworn in the Acting-Governor signed a proclamation, evidently drawn up by Mr. Bryce, but which was countersigned by Sir James Prendergast, as his Majesty's Commissioner for the Western District. The proclamation, after reciting in a clear, able manner the whole of the facts relating to the West Coast difficulties, various offers made to Te Whiti, his scornful rejection of them, and determined defiance of the law, gave as ultimatum a period of 14 days, within which the offer made of reserves must be accepted, or they would be allocated to the Crown. It also stated that in view of the observance of law and order must be given, and that defiance of the law would no longer be tolerated. This remarkable document further called upon all the natives to leave Parikahi and return to their own homes, unless Te Whiti listened to reason, and pointed out that unless they did this the innocent might suffer with the guilty. Immediately after the document was signed Mr. Bryce was sworn in and assumed the responsibility of carrying it out. It was after 8 o'clock at night when Sir James Prendergast, as Acting-Governor, signed this proclamation, and by a most remarkable coincidence, within two hours afterwards a man-of-war's lights were seen coming up the harbour, and very soon H.M.S. "Hector" arrived in the bay, and anchored in the harbour. His Excellency did not land that night or send anyone any official notice of his arrival, which, indeed, was not known until the shipping reporters named shore shortly after midnight. Whether Mr. Bryce knew of the Governor's return or not is unknown, but if he did, he took no notice of it, for by the time the West Coast coach, at 5 o'clock that morning, started for the scene of action. The day of his accession to office, and of the proclamation was of course vividly fully to every paper in the colony by the Press Association, and I think I may say that, with the exception of two journals, all hailed both events with the most lively satisfaction. As Mr. Bryce passed through the various West Coast settlements, he was loudly cheered, and on Thursday morning Sir Arthur Gordon landed under salute from the Emerald, and he at once proceeded to Government House and sent for his Ministers. They were not all at placed at his return; and although strict reticence has been observed, there is little doubt that he was in a furious mood, and that he had a bad time of it. He is said to have objected very strongly to the Government being troubled about the matter, and insisted that the responsibility in Native matters rested entirely with the colony, intimating pretty clearly that they would not permit any interference on the part of an Imperial officer, and that unless his Excellency was prepared to occur in what had been done and what it was intended to do he would resign. He was really so angry that the Governor and Ministers remained in this strained position for several days when the general consensus of opinion throughout the colony appeared to be so unanimously in favour of the Ministerial action that the Governor, it is understood, reluctantly acquiesced.

It is rumored that at one time he actually contemplated resigning, and that he was on the ground when he left the colony. Within New Zealand, however, the moment it was signed by Sir James Prendergast, as Administrator of the Government. Very wisely, however, Sir Arthur Gordon did not raise this point, or it would have opened up issues of a still wider and more serious character as to his own status as Governor. At the time of his departure from the colony he was not even asked whether he was not ipso facto vacating the office of Governor, and some of the most eminent legal men in the colony hold firmly the belief that the dormant commission to Sir James Prendergast having once been called into action, Sir Arthur Gordon has no right whatever to resume the Government without a further indication of His Majesty's pleasure. However, so good purpose might be served by raising such questions, and accordingly, although it has furnished good subjects for leader-writers, it has not been formally raised, and Sir Arthur Gordon has been recognized as de facto Governor. Had he attempted to question the validity of the proclamation, however, he would certainly have found his own position seriously assailed. To return to the subject of the recruitment of the Volunteers, the Minister, was to order recruiting for the Armed Constabulary throughout the colony, and to take on only drilled and experienced men. Some hundreds of those discharged a few months before, or who had previously served, were soon enrolled and sent up, the force on the plains being between 600 and 700 strong. More recruits were sent up, and Mr. Bryce himself, with his willingness to accept the service of volunteers, offered for a short term of service, and this offer has been most enthusiastically accepted. The first corps to offer was the Wellington Naval Brigade, which at 48 hours' notice, paraded 80 men and 3 officers, and sent them off in one of the Government steamers to the Nelson companies, numbering in all 305 men and 10 officers. 140 officers and men of the Thames Volunteers are now en route for the front. 80 officers and men of the Timaru Volunteers left there yesterday. 140 officers and men of the Wanganui Rifles leave tomorrow. The Wanganui Cavalry, 60 strong, have also been ordered to the front, and have the Tara-naki Mounted Rifles, which are expected to start for the Wellington City Rifles, about 50 of the Engineer Corps, 70 of the Waiparohi Volunteers, 80 of the Wellington Guards, and about 50 of the suburban corps are under orders to embark on Tuesday, and a further detachment of the Naval Brigade, probably numbering 100, will also leave at the same time. In addition to this the Coast Volunteers enrolled throughout the disturbed districts numbers between 40 and 200 men, who are expected to arrive at the same time. Mr. Bryce has been given to his disposal when he gives of grace given to Te Whiti expiring. Nothing could exceed the alacrity with which the Volunteer force of the colony have offered their services, and the Government have had some difficulty in picking out the corps to be sent. It is now announced that for the present no more are required. Should the necessity come, the Government are getting the 2000 men ready to go as soon as the means of transport could be provided. All who have gone or are going are fine stalwart men, well drilled, and able to give an excellent account of themselves if fighting should take place. A very large number are "medal" men, who have served before. In order to put the force into a proper legal position it was necessary to formally call them out. The Government, however, are proceeding in this in the terms of the Volunteer Act drawn up and forwarded to the Governor's signature immediately it was determined to utilize the Volunteers. It remained at Government House unsigned for two days; but Ministers took no notice of this, and calmly proceeded with their preparations. Several corps actually detached to the front before the Governor had signed his signature. It is not surprising that this has elicited such a rank evident unwillingness. On Mr. Bryce's arrival at Pungarehu camp, he sent a private secretary into Parikahia with copies of the proclamation printed in Maori. Copies were personally served on Te Whiti and Teu. They had, however, received copies through the newspapers a day or two earlier. The first one which reached the place Te Whiti ordered one of his people, who was known to him, to go to the printer and bring the paper. This man did until he came to the final paragraph, calling on the natives to leave Te Whiti and return home. There Te Whiti stopped him, saying he had heard enough. He knew long ago from God that this proclamation would be issued, but it would have no effect. Before the 14 days were up, the Pakehas would be driven off, and the natives would be left to do as they pleased, but to the world. With this means no one can make out. Mr. Bryce has since informed Te Whiti that the 14 days' grace dates from the service of the proclamation upon him, and that on Saturday next, 26th November, he will personally visit Parikahia to receive Te Whiti's final reply. He will do so with fully 2000 armed men at his back. Te Whiti and his followers are not at all alarmed, they say they are going away with comparative ease, for in a military sense Parikahia is absolutely indefensible as a position. That they have brought themselves within the grasp of the law by their recent actions is, I believe, pretty certain; and if they remain where they are they will not doubt be arrested and tried. Mr. Bryce is not the only old colleague who has re-joined the Ministry. About a week before he did so, Mr. Oliver, one of the representatives of Dunedin, and a Minister of Public Works, resigned his seat, and Executive as a member of the Government without portfolio, and with a seat in the Upper House. Mr. Oliver resigned shortly before the beginning of last session of Parliament, the plea being private business occasioned by the loss of his business manager, Mr. Frya, one of the ill-fated Taranaki passengers. Mr. Oliver was a candidate for re-election to one of the Dunedin seats; he was elected, and he has since been attending to his medical adviser, for he has to conduct the work and excitement of an election contest, and his former colleague offered him a seat for life in the Legislative Council, and on in the Cabinet without portfolio. It was a most convenient arrangement for Mr. Oliver, of course, but it is doubtful whether it has had much effect in strengthening the Ministry. Their decided anti-Unionist attitude, however, has not changed. Mr. Bryce, to their ranks, has done much to restore public confidence in them, and the result of the recent elections will, in consequence, probably be very different to what appeared probable three weeks ago. As I have said, their action in regard to Mr. Bryce and the proclamation has elicited almost universal approval. The only two journalistic dissentients I know of are the Harold and the Star. The former is undoubtedly the most ably written paper in New Zealand, but it is remarkable for its determined hostility to the present Government. It refuses to believe that any good thing can come out of Nazareth, and it accordingly looks at all his Ministerial acts with a distorted vision. The only sympathiser it has towards the Press is the Wanganui Herald, which it thinks entitled to be owned and controlled by the Treasurer of the Grey Government. The only politician of note who has pronounced against the native policy is Mr. Robert Stout, Mr. Ballance's former colleague as Attorney-General. Mr. Stout is not now in Parliament, and resolutely refused to enter it, although he would be the most popular leader in it if he would do so. He has now issued his own manifesto, and is not expected to support the long protest against the native policy of the Government, and advocating Te Whiti's cause and rights. Mr. Stout and Mr. Ballance have made a very false move in this, for it was the Grey Government, of which those were prominent members, which first seriously tackled the Te Whiti difficulty, which caused the Waimata massacre, and it is to be regretted, which offered those leaders a safe, and avowed a stern determination to crush the native, and the settlement of the Waimata. The Grey Government which originated on the plains a splendid constabulary force of some 700 men to protect the settlement of the plains, and had not the Grey Government been ejected from office, there is little doubt that precisely the steps now being taken would have been taken at a much earlier period. It reflects shame upon their faith in political honesty and courage to find that the Government, which was the first to protest against their political opponents endeavouring to give effect to, however hardly, the very policy they themselves initiated, are now the only just and right one. It was the mistake of the Hall Government that they did not carry out the policy of their predecessors in this matter at once. They hesitated and procrastinated, and the result was that the Government of the day, Mr. Ballance, Mr. Bryce, to retire through want of firmness and decision in dealing with the question. It is rather hard on them now, when they have at last made up their minds to do what is right, and screwed their courage to the sticking place, that they should find the chief, and I might say almost the only, assailants are dissenters from this determination in two political parties, the High Church and the Liberal Unionists, in those devoted precisely similar action to one now decided on, and maintained its justice and expediency with unanswerable arguments. The colony will, as a whole, back any party which will settle this native difficulty once and for ever cannot be doubted. The maintenance of an armed peace is disastrous to the colony and nearly as expensive as an armed peace. The Government, however, are not to be deterred by the King, Tawhiao, has assured the Government that he has no sympathy with Te Whiti, and will not be drawn into his quarrel. If hostilities should occur, however, there are plenty of young bloods eager for a row among the King natives, and not a few who really believe in Te Whiti, and these would certainly look to a standard.

OUTRAGES IN THE SOUTH SEAS.
(FROM OUR NOMEA CORRESPONDENT.)

NOMEA, OCT. 30.

M.J.M.S. Miranda arrived to-day from Solomon Islands, via Sandwich. At Uji Island, one of this group, information was given to the Miranda of an attack upon the trading schooner Atlantic by the native of Rubiana—another island of this extensive group—the particulars of which are as follows:—

A plan had been concocted by the Rubiana natives to attack and, if possible, take the Atlantic, in order to get a supply of skulls. The co-operation of a supposed friendly chief was secured, though with some difficulty, for he had hitherto maintained a friendly attitude towards the whites, and by getting him more easily to carry out the plan arranged by causing him to believe that the sleeping natives were all prepared for the attack. At last, when his people came in of canoe, unarmed, their ostensible purpose being to trade. During the day canoes owned by the Rubiana people joined the others, taking concealed arms with them. The mate of the vessel, rendered suspicious by experience and the too frequent massacres which have taken place in the islands, took the precaution to see that the arms were taken the deck, carrying a bayonet in his hand, pretending to clean it. Suddenly, as by signal, he felt he was about to be attacked from behind, sprang aside, and the murder-dealing tomahawk, aimed to cleave his skull, missed its mark, inflicting a comparatively slight wound on his shoulder. Quick as lightning, he plunged the bayonet through the body of his assailant. A general melee ensued on board, but the crewing party of chief natives found themselves overwhelmed and fled, having killed but one of the crew of the Atlantic—a black boy—who, on their side, shot a number of the treacherous wretches during the short struggle for life and death. The Miranda, on receipt of this information, proceeded to Jurio, calling on the way at the island of Bonongah, in order to secure the services as guide to Jurio of a well-known friendly chief, natives of Sandi, who was guided by Captain Cable of a regular trading schooner, in search of Sandi's village; arrived opposite which they entered into friendly conversation with four unarmed natives, who informed them that Sandi's village was close at hand, but he was absent. Whilst talking, two of the natives excited an ammunition pouch and two clothing off the number of their decked and armed—were observed making down towards the boat. Captain Cable cried out, "To your rifles!" on hearing which the natives vanished like magic.

There is no doubt that had not the men been well prepared, and on their guard, carefully keeping their best outfit, atrocious attack would have been made upon them for the sake of plunder. Captain Cable's warning was not without effect, and proved on this and subsequent occasions of very great value and assistance to the Miranda, which, on the return of the boat, proceeded to Jurio, calling at a small island occupied by a Mr. Nelson, a trader, whose position for some time has been a very critical one. Here a friendly chief, named Mingo, offered to conduct the captain of the Miranda and his force to the village of Sandi, at a short distance from the coast, and to remain there for the night, as Captain Dawson, being informed that if the man went, his life would certainly be eventually forfeited, he put the man ashore with a good reward; for, spite of the known danger he was incurring, he desired to go, saying he did not care, "suppose they want to kill-me by-and-by." Captain Cable offered and went in Mingo's place. Everything was arranged for the purpose of the natives of the Rubiana people by Captain Dawson. Two well armed boats, accompanied by Captain Dawson, left the ship before she was anchored, and arrived at the village just after daylight; but even at that early hour the guilty natives, knowing what they deserved, had decamped, and nothing but empty villages were found. These were destroyed, and also ten large war canoes, the latter being far less the Rubiana being neighbouring "bull-hunters." The Miranda returned the same day to Bonongah, arriving there at 4 p.m. An armed boat was sent on shore, Captain Cable giving the lieutenant for the purpose of demanding restitution of property stolen from the boat the day previous. They were met by a large number of well armed natives who assumed a most menacing attitude in the dry bed of a river and hid themselves behind the houses, but when they saw that the natives were without arms, they retreated, which resulted in the restoration of such clothes as were stolen and an ammunition pouch, from which, however, the contents had been taken. Upon the boat's crew re-embarking to rejoin the vessel, the natives opened fire upon them, one bullet striking within six yards of the men, who immediately followed the order to "fire," although probably with no other effect than to hasten their return to the vessel, they found the friendly chief "Sandy," who had come off in his canoe to inform them that his village was within 300 or 400 yards of that of the natives who had robbed and fired upon the Miranda's boat. He was quite fearless, and proudly showed an engraved plate which he had taken off a rifle, and which testified that it was made as a present to him for having been the first to fire, and the lives of a number of his people who had been killed and carried off. He said that he had "plenty talk along another man, big ship, plenty rifle, am" if they continued to steal and murder. They only derided and laughed at the "big ship," as it had become a rule for a few shots to be fired over their heads or over their villages. After dark, three shells went thundering in the direction of the village, reaching the beach at a distance of about 100 yards, and the natives were seen to be running on the beach when peaceably returning. Next morning, at half-past six, a force was landed, and the war canoes and village of the belligerent natives were destroyed, Sandi's village being carefully guarded from injury.

From Bonongah the Miranda returned to Nalese's Island, where, by the influence of Mr. Nelson and the chief Mingo, some of the principal chiefs of the island were called upon to assemble, and were assembled and informed by Captain Dawson that the object of the warship was to protect the right and punish the wrong that if any injury were done to the natives, the perpetrators thereof would be arrested and tried; but if they committed murders and other outrages upon the whites, they might be sure of severe and speedy punishment; further, not to imagine because the warship was left that they were safer, for they had been behaving themselves well, or on the contrary; and not to imagine that, by the cunning device of getting other chiefs and tribes to commit the outrages, they would escape the consequences, for these would be visited upon the chiefs and villages in the immediate vicinity of the doers. The chiefs promised to examine their influence to prevent evil for the future. The punishments they have received have had a most salutary effect, and the natives of the island of the Miranda's mission have been the speed with which the guilty were punished had struck terror into them, and much satisfaction is expressed by many traders and settlers, whose lives of late have been most precarious ones. Mr. Nelson says that for the first time for years he begins to feel safe. For long he has owed his life to the warnings of friendly natives. Only a few weeks since, he received information that a party of natives were on their way. When the treacherous natives appeared, up they came, him fully prepared and on the watch, and he was not molested. A few more Miranda expeditions, and the South Sea Islands will cease to be synonymous terms with robbery, murder, and cannibalism. The destruction of the war canoes is one of the most potent means of preventing the fearful outrages by the skull-hunters, and the destruction of the war canoes, from 50 to 60 feet long, and elaborately carved and decorated, and the labour of years for their construction; and to provide the means of carrying out their skull-hunting expeditions, striking terror into the less powerful tribes. The greater number of skulls that can be secured for any ceremony, the greater will be in their estimation the supposed good fortune which will ensue to the newly-married canoe, newly-built house, plantation, &c.

The skull-hunters have been the cause of all the outrages by the Rubiana people have been consequent upon this foolish habit, and not in any way connected with the labour trade, which has never been practised in this part of the extensive Solomon Island group. One pleasing picture is made known by this cruise of the Miranda respecting a way

THOSE MAGNIFICENT AND HIGHLY IMPROVED PASTORAL PROPERTIES,
WOMBOURNE
and WANDANDY,
situated on the MACQUARIE RIVER, about 60 miles from DURBO, together with the EXTENSIVE and IMPORTANT
IMPROVEMENTS thereon, and the following Stocks—viz.,
90,000 HIGH-CLASS SHEEP
and
1400 WELL-BRED CATTLE.

* * * Stern, working plant, and all other belongings to be taken by valuation at the usual way.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the PROPRIETOR, in consequence of his intended departure for Europe, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Fitz-Roy Street, on THURSDAY, the 15th DECEMBER next, at 11 o'clock, the above valuable pastoral properties.

WOMBODIE and WANBADRY adjoin each other, and within their boundaries contain SEVEN BLOCKS OF COUNTRY,

New Wambollee Kialwang
Wentzool New Suddila

forming together an enormous area (estimated at 150,000 acres) of the richest description of farming country, consisting principally of open plains of myall and salt bush.

The Wambudry block has a frontage to the Macquarie River of 46 miles by the road, though considerably more by the winding course of the river. It extends for 10 miles to a third grade in a northerly direction for about 26 miles, and about the centre is intersected by the Macquarie Creek, to which it has frontage on both banks of about 18 miles. The southern portion of the run is 10 miles wide, and the northern portion is 12 miles wide, and about 18 miles, and other portions by the Boothby Creek from its source for about 18 miles, 8 miles being double frontages;

by the Back Creek about 5 miles on both the banks; and by K&N large dams, two of which, on each side of the Back Creek, are 200 feet high. The Back Creek is a very rapid stream, and has numerous waterholes over the run, altogether containing a permanent and inexhaustible supply. The whole country on its boundaries is enclosed by a substantial sheep-proof fence of six wires partly laced, and is subdivided into numerous paddocks of various sizes, some of which are pure breeds, rams, &c. THE FENCING-riding Wandahilly with the herd of cattle from the Womboblie country is of the very best description of seven wire laced. The other fences are of the same wire laced, but of different descriptions. Some are of five wires. Altogether there are about 170 miles of fencing on the run, which have cost on an average £50 per mile. All posts are 2 feet in the ground, and 8 inches wide at the small end.

IMPROVEMENTS are of the most extensive and complete character.

The HOMESTEAD at Wombobee, which with its surroundings are all on purchased land, is a substantially built family residence of eight rooms, &c., with a grand staircase, kitchen, &c. The Water is laid on to the bathroom, dressing, garden, &c., the supply being kept up by a windmill pump and conserved in six 400-gallon tanks at a requisite elevation.

The Woolshed is a building added to the Homestead complete for every convenience for a gentleman's family, and necessary for the convenient working of a property of such extent and value.

The WOOLSHED has been erected within the present year, and is of a very superior and commodious design, and for all purposes, is complete in all its details. The woolroom has storing capacity for 500 bales. The shed is provided with a first-class screw press, and at the shearing shed, where there are

There are several other improvements on the Run which need not be particularized, except three sets of sheep-draughting yards at convenient places, each capable to hold and work 20,000 sheep at a time.

LAND.

The FREEHOLD LAND aggregates 3610 acres, having 8615 acres of pre-emptives attached thereto, and the selected lands number 1720 acres, upon which all the requirements of the Land Act of 1882 are complied with, and which 15s per acre has to be paid to make them freehold. These lands will be reckoned in the purchase money as follows, viz:—

 Freshets, 3110 acres, at $2 per acre, and selections, 1730 " " at $1 50 per acre.

■ THE STOCK to be sold with this property is as follows, viz:—
 SHEEP.

| Total wethers, more or less | ... | ... | $4,000 |
| Rams, various ages | ... | ... | 800 |
| Total sheep | ... | ... | 80,000 |

The whole of the above sheep are station-bred, and for a period of 13 years the ewe flocks have been annually closely culled, and the rams selected from the stud flock by the proprietor, assisted by the able experience of Mr. J. J. Walsh, the well-known sheep judge of Mudgee. The selection has been well done, and the sheep are up to the highest standard of quality for wool-producing and large carcasses. The breeding flocks give a total of 34,000 sheep, including 12,000 wethers to be put to the rams for next season's lambing.

The above stations are admitted to rank amongst the choicest properties in the noted BILGH DISTRICT; and far that the owners have been able to secure a VERY GOOD AND SUBSTANTIAL FENCING AND STAND PLUMMERED.

The Wombombie paddocks are equal, in average season, to carry at least 10,000 sheep, two large paddocks at the present being held in reserve unstocked; while the Wandabury Run has, at least, a half a hundred acres of the best grass and the grass and herbage are equal in quality to the Wombombie country both for wool-growing and fattening stock, a removal of the cattle would give ample room for at least 20,000 additional sheep.

It is to be noted, however, in proportion to relative size, that the Wandabury Run is a very large property, and the Wandabury Run is a very large property.

mer; and capitalists looking out for a first-class investment should not lose sight of the opportunity thus afforded by this sale.

A thorough inspection is invited, and intending purchasers will receive every attention on the station, to enable them to view the run and the stock.
